Text: Ezekiel 3:1-5:17

Sermon Title: “What does your life say about God?”

1. What stood out to you most from Ezekiel 3–5, and why?
2. Ezekiel was told to eat the scroll before he proclaimed God's Word. What does this teach us about the relationship between receiving God's Word and communicating it to others? (Ezek. 3:1–3)
3. God told Ezekiel to speak whether the people listened or refused to listen (3:11). Why is it difficult for us to faithfully speak truth when we know someone may reject it?
4. What does the watchman passage (3:16–21) teach us about our responsibility for faithfulness versus our responsibility for how others respond?
5. God used Ezekiel's own actions as part of his message in chapter 4. Why do you think God sometimes communicates through what His people do, not merely through what they say?
6. Ezekiel's prophetic actions were intended to get the attention of people who had become hard-hearted. What are some ways people today can become spiritually desensitized to God's Word?
7. Ezekiel 5 shows that Israel's judgment was not arbitrary; it was covenant judgment. Why does Israel's identity as God's covenant people make their rebellion especially serious?
8. The sermon asked, “What does my life communicate about the God whose name I bear?” What might someone who knows you only by your words and actions conclude about your God?
9. Think about one area of life—home, work, church, conflict, online activity, finances, relationships, etc. Where might your actions be communicating something about God that you don't intend to communicate?
10. Jesus calls His followers to let their light shine so that others “may see your good works and give glory to your Father” (Matt. 5:16). What is one specific way you can represent Christ faithfully this week?
